Hoboken, NJ, March 19, 2021 //PressRelease/ -- Two former members of the pioneering Atlanta based jam band, The Grapes - Steven Fink and Romin Dawson - recently formed a songwriting duo called Ten Ton Flood and have released their debut single, "Peaks and Valleys," today on iTunes and all streaming platforms including Spotify and Apple Music, as well as Amazon and Google Play. With masterfully composed lyrics, melody, and chorus and soaring instruments and vocals, this epic song transports one to a far off place and time long ago - evoking vivid, haunting images of ancient horsemen roaming majestic landscapes.

Steven (Music, instruments, vocals) and Romin (Lyrics) have been friends - and creative collaborators - for 30 years. It all started when Steven joined The Grapes - that Romin was already the rhythm guitarist for - as a keyboard player, lead vocalist, and songwriter. They were in the band together for 7 years, recording several albums, and playing over 2,000 shows in 44 states before moving on to other pursuits. The Grapes still have a large, loyal following to this day, and they celebrate this by performing annually in Atlanta to a capacity crowd.

Now, Steven and Romin have reignited their creative fire and have written over 20 songs together. These songs cross a wide spectrum of styles and influences, and will easily find a place in a wide variety of playlists. Each one has a unique signature - and is full of the knowledge, wisdom and love of a life well-lived.

They have an unusual, but winning, songwriting process. Romin writes with a highly visual style - more a word painter than a classic lyricist.

When the “painting” is finished, he hands it over to Steven. Inspired by the images and portraits of life he has been given, Steven will take a musical idea of his and shape it to the word images. The results have been spectacular so far, and Ten Ton Flood is excited to share their efforts far and wide.

While “Peaks and Valleys” is the first single to be released, more is on the way. A 6 song side A release will be following in the coming weeks. Stay tuned!
